

Professional Remodeler Magazine names Fort Wayne's Sam Eagleson, owner of Evergreen Remodeling, among the U.S. Top 40 under 40 Remodelers

Fort Wayne, IN, July 19, 2011 — In their first-ever search and selection of the nation's foremost, up-and-coming leaders in the residential construction industry, the editors of Professional Remodeler magazine and HousingZone.com have named the nation's top 40 contractors under the age of 40 whom represent the future in home construction and improvements. The list published in the July 2011 issue features key individuals from across the United States, including Fort Wayne, Indiana's Sam Eagleson, owner of Evergreen Remodeling, Inc.

"Change and disruption breed innovation. And who better to innovate than a new generation of successful industry leaders?" asks Jonathan Sweet, editor-in-chief of Professional Remodeler magazine. "So we conducted a search of individuals from consultants to 'green gurus' (environmental specialists) to second and third generation remodelers carrying on a family tradition of quality. These 40 are the brightest stars in remodeling."

Sam Eagleson, who just turned 33, started Evergreen Remodeling in 2007, with the concept of promoting and producing what he sees as most needed in the remodeling industry throughout northern Indiana: fresh ideas with a heightened awareness of "green" products and solutions.

"I'm proud of the fact that, after almost 20 years in the remodeling industry, I still have a never ending thirst for a challenge and the knowledge that comes with it," says Eagleson. "We're out there to help customers rethink and improve the ways their homes function and provide comfort and security. It's what we do."
